HUNTING ETHICS by Sean 'Blue' Gray

As I begin to close the door on another hunting season, I have come to the conclusion that some hunters may have forgotten a few of the very important hunting ethics that we were all taught when we received our hunting license. Ethics are a set of moral principles that guide a person's behavior. So, the term hunting ethics specifically refers to a code of conduct that ALL hunters should abide by.

Since the beginning of the big game season, I have bumped into fellow hunters, friends and family members who have had some disturbing stories in terms of "hunting ethics". I would like to remind all hunters of a few very important principals that we should all remember before we get out into the outdoors.

Obey All Laws— First and foremost, we need to be sure that we are always in compliance with all current hunting rules and regulations. Hunting out of season, using another person's property without permission, and exceeding limits are all examples of behavior that are illegal and unethical.

Take Shots At A Reasonable Range- With increased technology many hunters feel that long range shots are ethical, but remember that we as hunters should get as close to our target as possible before shooting. I am not going to discuss what distance is a long range.....but be sure you have a good clear shot. Shorter distance leaves margin for error.

Respect Others – This is just common sense. DO NOT use other hunters stands, and DO NOT set up in another groups area. This is becoming a real problem. DO NOT litter and always be courteous to anyone you encounter. If you make a kill, you should discreetly transport it to your home out of respect for non-hunters and the animal.

Practice Fair Chase Principles- Fair chase is the pursuit of an animal in such a way that does not give the hunter an unfair advantage. Author, Jim Posewitz describes fair chase as the balance between the hunter and the hunted. It is a balance that allows hunters to occasionally succeed while animals generally avoid being taken.

Fully Use the Animal – Firstly, it is imperative that you as a hunter make every effort to find any animal that you may have wounded. Once you find the animal, you should harvest all edible portions of meat. Any portions of the animal you may not use, you can always give to local fur barns, trappers, or people that may use what you generally discard.

All in all, we as hunters must hunt sustainably to ensure that future generations have the great opportunities we have. With increased technology, more hunters, and better equipment to access more areas, we must remember that ethical hunting will ensure that we can enjoy what we love to do!

Healthy Living with Danika

by Danika Lavoie-Rochette

The holiday season is upon us! It's a time filled with giving, eating, celebrating and making memories that'll last a lifetime.

Who could ask for a better season? It does seem, however, that over the past decade or so, this time of year and all of the busy-ness that comes with it, has created higher levels of stress for many. How can we give to others if we have nothing left to pour from our own cup? It's especially important to take a moment for ourselves, to decompress and reset, in order to continue appreciating the beauty of the holidays.

Studies consistently show a direct link between exercise and stress reduction.

So, if you're feeling particularly anxious one evening, why not call up a few friends, prepare your preferred warm beverage and head out for a nice evening stroll in your neighbourhood to check out the holiday lights?

This is especially effective to unwind on a mild night after a fresh layer of snow has blanketed the yards, bringing the brightness of the lights to full effect.

It makes for an inexpensive, calming and relaxing evening. Plus, you're getting in a bit of exercise!

Enjoy your leisurely strolls this December and Happy Holidays to all!

Meaningful and Economical Holiday Gifts for Teachers and Education Support Staff

The holiday season is upon us. It's the time of year where the scramble for gifts begins and our pocket books start shrinking. Hopefully this short article will give you some easy, meaningful and economical gift giving ideas for those in education this year.

School Program Donations

Our public schools in Ontario are always looking for funds to run better programming for students. Many schools run breakfast programs, athletic teams that compete in out of town tournaments or expensive sports, drama/music programs that require materials, robotics clubs that need funding and even clothes closets for disadvantaged students. I know that my school also runs a program that purchases fresh fruit and vegetables to be on hand daily in our main office. All of these programs require funds, and unfortunately there never seems enough to go around. Why not ask at your school's front office and make a donation to a school program in your child's teacher's name? This way, your gift will support teachers, students and the school community.

Homemade Food/Baking

I don't know about other teachers, but my favourite part of the holidays involves homemade foods and baking. This is an economical and meaningful gift that goes a long way for any teacher – especially one like me with young kids. I'll take a homemade meat pie over a scented candle any day of the week! To make it extra special, have your kids help with making the homemade item.

Student Crafts/Art

Similar to homemade food, teachers and educational staff love when students make us special mementos like crafts and art. I've kept many homemade gifts from students and because of the time and effort that went into creating them; they are very special to me. This year, my own kids will be making their teachers door decorations/wreaths made out of antique skates. They are very excited about this, it's economical and in turn their teachers will have a beautiful holiday decoration to display on their classroom or home door.

Philanthropic Gifts

Another meaningful and economical gift idea for those in education is philanthropic gifts. Our local Salvation Army sells holiday cards whose purchase equates to a gift of a meal to a homeless member of our community. The cards can be purchased, and then given as a gift to teachers in lieu of something materialist. A second option is purchasing a philanthropic gift from a company such as Unicef that sells gifts for children in third world or war torn countries, such as warm clothing, food, educational supplies, athletic equipment or books. I have both received and given this type of gift and it is incredibly meaningful for both the giver and recipient. This also leads to some great conversations and teaching moments about the 'real' meaning of gift giving and the holiday season.

Community Heart & Soul

A little bit about somebody..... By Jana Niemi-Lahnalampi

John Getchell, M.B.

Onaping Falls 503 - Royal Canadian Legion is much more than an organization dedicated to war veterans and Remembrance Day. Although that in itself is a noble cause. In the words of John Getchell, current President of the branch, "We are not just about helping Veterans. We dedicate funds to hockey teams, ski clubs, choirs, the Onaping Falls News and work with other organizations in our area to help them fundraise. We also work with our youth, educating them about the Legion and what we stand for. Poster and literary contests for Remembrance Day, and public speaking for the younger students and bursaries for those who want to continue their education. The Legion provides valuable support to multiple organizations in our community." Recently the Legion collaborated with Kristy Paolini the organizer of the Tri Sport weekend, which helps bring people and money into our community facilities, supporting both private and public entities. This event in turn also supported numerous worthwhile organizations such as Onaping Falls Minor Hockey, as well as our local Softball league, Winter Carnival, Food bank, Christmas hampers, Kids with medical needs, Cartier kids club and Power Skating. The Legion is much more than just a local hang out.

It provides support to many organizations that make this community a better place to live in.

A key person in the branch that oversees this good work is John Getchell. A branch member for 35 years, he has held various positions within the branch; the most recent being president. John embodies the mission of the Legion as he has dedicated himself to service to the community.

A long time leader of the Scouts Canada (Wolf Cubs) he has guided and educated the youth of our community for 18 years. John's roots in our community run deep. He attended Hardy Public School, Lindsley Public School and went on to be a proud CVDCS Flyer before attending Cambrian College

John worked locally at Falconbridge Nickel mines as a mechanic and trainer before retiring after 28 years of service. He and his late wife Laurie raised their three daughters, Jolene, Christine and Valerie in Levack. When he is not busy with Legion business, John loves spending time with his four grandsons: Matthew, Noah, Ethan, Ryan.

You may notice the initial M.B. after Johns name. John was awarded the Medal of Bravery in late 2000 by the honourable Governor General, Adrian Clarkson. He wears these letters proud. The life he saved was of his own daughter, Christine. While at a snowmobile rally in Sault Ste. Marie one rider lost control. John pushed Christine out of the way of the oncoming sled. He suffered two broken legs.

Well deserving of such an award.

Thank you John for being such a valuable member to our community!
